The Sign That Means
"Better Babies"

Look for it in your druggist's window. It means that you can get from him everything you need to make your baby a Better Baby, the right soap, the right powder, the right bottle, and most important of all, just the right food

Nestlé's Food
(a complete food—not a milk modifier)

If you can't nurse the baby, Nestlé's is the only safe food to give him, because Nestlé's is so like his mother's milk, he won't feel the difference.

In Nestlé's—milk from healthy cows, purified—free from germs—the calf needs are modified—the baby needs are added.

Reduced to a powder—it comes to you in an air-tight can. No hand has touched it—no germ can reach it. It is a complete food so you only add water and boil one minute—and you may know you are giving your baby the food his little body needs.

Send the coupon for a free sample of Nestlé's, enough for twelve feedings, and the specialist's book on the care of babies. Don't delay. Your baby's health depends on the food you give him now.

AIR PILOT TELLS OF AERIAL FIGHTS

Says Initiative, Speed and Daring Are Needed in Plane Battles.

LONDON, May 25.—Writing in a London newspaper, a British air pilot today gives the following account of the swift during stratagem of air battles:

"Closing into conflict, the primary idea of the pilot of each air craft is to obtain the best strategic position; that is with both the machines traveling 'down' wind and in the same direction. The best strategic position is above the other machine, there to be able to take it with machine gun fire, or, if needed, to drop bombs on it.

"Having attained the strategic position the three qualities most required are initiative, speed, and daring; initiative, because it is the unexpected move that always wins the aerial combat; speed, to be able to climb faster than the other machine; and daring, to accomplish that which the enemy fears to essay.

"Pilot in the stress and excitement of a hot fight repeatedly perform evolutions that they admit would be impossible to them in their saner moments, for the strain on the machine is enormous.

"With the greater number of aeroplanes the machine gun fires through the blades of the propeller. This means that at least five percent of the bullets will be deflected.

"With only the pilot aboard it is a matter of extreme difficulty to manoeuvre the gun and the plane at one and the same time.

"With some types of machine it is impossible.

Wind Influences Fight.

"The direction of the wind influences the combat to a very large extent. Let us take as an example two aeroplanes, A and B, both with a speed of 80 miles per hour, approaching one another. A is flying down wind (with the wind) and a wind of 15 miles behind it. A therefore has an actual speed of 95 miles per hour. B, on the other hand, travelling against the same wind, has only a speed of 65 miles. Therefore A has an advantage in speed of 30 miles.

"Before November, 1915, enemy airmen were loath to give light at any price. The Fokker, with its superior engine power, made its appearance and the German airmen became not only willing but anxious. "The fighting aeroplane, or, to give it its official title, the battle-plane, is a machine of an entirely different type from those used for reconnaissance and 'gun spotting' work. Its main duty is to convey the bomb-droppers on raiding expeditions and to beat off any attacks that may be made upon them.

"It is essential that it shall be able to climb rapidly and that it has a powerful engine, in order that if it be out-numbered it can get away by means of superior speed.

"The preferable types of machine for this class of work are those of the 'pusher' (propeller behind) and 'double' engine variety.

Wider Field of Fire.
"By removing the propeller blades from the forepart of the fuselage (body), the gunner is given at least an 80 percent wider field of fire.

"When the firing is through the propeller the accuracy entirely depends on the skill of the pilot in manoeuvring the machine into the required position—that is with the nose pointing directly toward the other machine.

"Thus it will be seen that with each movement of the attacked the attacker must immediately follow suit, and the probability is that if he be not wary enough he will be led into a trap over the enemy guns.

"Another most important matter is a suitable mounting for the gun. This must allow the largest possible area of elevation and depression.

"The best direction in which to fire the gun depends on the type of machine. With some the best direction is backwards."

FUNSTON IS REFUSED MORE COAST ARTILLERY

Said to Have Replied to Department
With Request for More Militia.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 24.—Gen. Frederick Funston's request for more coast artillery, it is understood here, has been refused by the war department. The additional units of the regular army and the militia of three border states has enabled him to strengthen materially the patrols along the long border, but even with that added force there remain many weak points, it is said, and it was to protect them that he asked for more companies of coast artillery. Gen. Funston refused to confirm the report, but it was indicated at his headquarters that he had replied to the department's refusal by a request that more militia be sent him. The militia now in camp here will start moving toward the border tomorrow.

FIGHT IT OUT ON LAWN

Office Holder and Seeker of Job
Settle Quarrel.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 25.—Oswald McNeese, adjutant general of Louisiana, and A. D. Stuart, a New Orleans hotel man and aspirant to the adjutant general's office, settled a personal quarrel with their fists Wednesday on the capitol lawn before an audience made up largely of state legislators. By agreement a capitol employee acted as referee. Each of the principals got a black eye and cut and bruises about the face. Later both were summoned to appear in the police court Thursday.

Dr. J. H. Hughes of Kansas City, accused of selling morphine and cocaine, has had his license to practice medicine revoked for 500 years. My isn't the air in Missouri salubrious!—Boston Transcript.
